The Merritt Center
Returning Veterans Program

As more and more members of the armed forces return from war zones, it has become clear that many bring with them potentially severe emotional problems. Re-entry to routine lives and family situations can be complicated by the realities of post traumatic stress. The Returning Veterans Program offers a unique alternative for vets to encounter techniques to ease the transition. The Merritt Center can be a place of learning, healing, and renewal. The program requires no fee for vets to participate, and instead relies on the support of caring donors – like you – to bring this program to life. Please help us?

I wish to contribute to this special and compelling program.
